Defendant admits role, state claims

Kiln capital murder suspect bound over to July grand jury

by JAKE JACOB

The Hancock County Grand Jury, to be convened at the July term of Circuit Court, is to decide whether or not sufficient evidence exists to warrant a true bill being returned against Charles Edward Depreo, 18, charged with the capital murder of Janice C. Ladner, and aggravated assault of her daughter, Joy Lynn, 6, on April 8, of this year.

Justice Judge Joe Dobson of Beat 4 bound the defendant over to the grand jurors, following a lengthy preliminary hearing Tuesday in the Hancock County Courtroom.

The charges against Depreo were laid by the Hancock County Sheriff's Office following his being returned to the county from Norfolk, Va., where he was serving onboard the USS Independence, then undergoing repairs at the adjacent Portsmouth Navy Yard.

Depreo, subsequent events revealed, had been on leave from the Navy at the time of the alleged murder, returning to his ship on April 18.

District Attorney Albert Nicaise, assisted by County Special Prosecutor John Chevis, presented the state's evidence, while Mobile Attorney James E. Atchison acted on behalf of the defense.

The five-hour preliminary hearing saw three witnesses take the stand, and heard brief closing argument.

Principal witnesses were: Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson, Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Deputy Sheriff Leo Woods, and Special Investigator Joe Price, Mississippi Highway Patrol.

Nicaise in summary, said sufficient evidence had been presented to link the defendant with the crime, and that a crime had occurred, and that Depreo should be bound over to the grand jury on the charges of capital murder and aggravated assault.

Defense Attorney Atchison, on the other hand, who had frequently been called to task by Nicaise for conducting what he termed "fishing expeditions," questioned the voluntary nature of the prosecution's main piece of evidence, the alleged statement of the defendant, tendered police in Norfolk.

"We have no proper showing that some promise was not made," said Atchison, in reference to a period of time during which Depreo remained closeted alone with Navy investigation officers, following which time he, Peterson had informed the court, issued the statement admitting to his participation in the now charged crimes.

Atchison said further that "based on the evidence the state has introduced, it has failed to meet the burden of proof."

Judge Dobson found in favor of the state in binding Depreo over to the grand jury, and due to the nature of the charges, refusing bond.

The hearing was closed to all but family and those immediately involved with the case, a ruling first applied to the press, but later reversed in that instance after presentation was made to the court by Bill Gaudet, correspondent, South Mississippi Sun.

While admitting reporters, Dobson refused entry to photographers and banned employment of cameras of any nature in the courtroom.

Atchison, more familiar with Alabama law, questioned the admission of plea at this time, an entry denied by Dobson.

Under Mississippi law, the defendant is first charged with an offense, then at a preliminary hearing, prosecution is given the opportunity of presenting enough evidence to first confirm a

Kiln VFD faces loss of engine, aid grant

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Kiln Water and Fire Protection District of Hancock County stands a chance of losing more than $350,000 in grants from Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) because of lack of interest in the community.

A spokesman for the district said members were told this Tuesday at a meeting in Kiln, that the commissioners have voted June 30, 1978 as the cut off date for signing up for the proposed water system.

According to FmHA, a quota of 350 families is needed to qualify for the monies already allocated to the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District.

Less than 100 families have signed up for water.

Membership was told they may also lose the new fire engine funds allocated by FmHA if they don't get enough water users, according to an FmHA verbal report.

The Kiln Water and Fire Protection District of Hancock County was formerly the Kiln Volunteer Fire Company, Inc., incorporated June 7, 1971.

Commissioners are: Glen Stockstill, James Breazeale, Cleveland Wyatt, Jr. and Robert G. Bilbo.

The commissioners first petitioned the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Oct. 20, 1975, for the creation of the Water and Fire Protection District, the Supervisors adopting the enabling resolution on Nov. 17, permitting a public hearing on the formation.

At the hearing there were no objections. The board of supervisors then adopted a resolution of their intent to create a district and by a unanimous (VFD GRANT-PAGE 12)

Corps studies Diamondhead dredging plan

The Diamondhead Corporation has applied to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for a permit to perform work in navigable waters in connection with a proposed channel at the mouth of Cutoff Bayou.

The permit application states current use of Cutoff Bayou is limited because of a shallow bar across its entrance into Bay St. Louis.

Cutoff Bayou is the main access waterway to the Diamondhead marina, harbor, yacht club and waterfront homes and homesites.

Diamondhead is proposing to establish a five-foot channel by dredging an additional three feet deep in a 40-foot wide channel some 800 feet long.

Approximately 2,000 cubic yards of material will be removed and "spread uniformly" on the bottom adjacent to the channel, according to the corporation proposal.

Also under consideration by the Corps' Mobile office is an application from Herbert H. Padgett of 2006 North Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis, to build a (CORPS-PAGE 12)

Saga completes Section 19 gas well, down to 20,000 at Cuevas Junction

by EDGAR PEREZ

Completion operations are underway this week with production casings being set at the Saga Petroleum U.S., Inc.,

Rebecca Baxter Seal No. 1 gas well some 2.5 miles southwest of Kiln.

Drilling at the site has reached total depth of 13,649 and completion operations were begun Tuesday, according to Phinn Townsend, Saga's president.

Legal description of the location of the Rebecca B. Seal well, producing from the Mooringsport Sand, is the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of Section 19-Township Eight South-Range 14 West in the south-central portion of the Waveland Gas Field.

In the meantime, Townsend said 80 to 100 feet per day are being gained at the company's No. 1 Leo W. Seals 18-14 Well near Cuevas Junction.

The No. 1 Seals is a significant deep-test well in Hancock County with a projected total depth of 25,000 feet in the Smackover Formation.

The No. 1 Seals was drilling below 19,618 feet Tuesday, Townsend reported.

Reports from the site of the No. 1 Seals indicate that the well logged a significant section in the Mooringsport Formation, the pay sand of the Waveland Gas Field a few miles to the south.

If the Mooringsport Sand proves to be productive in the No. 1 Seals, limits of the Waveland Field could be extended to the north, making the field one of the major production areas in Mississippi.

At its total depth in the Smackover Formation, the No. 1 Seals will be the deepest test in Hancock County and one of the deepest in the State.

A string of nine and five-eighths inch protection pipe was cemented two weeks ago to a depth of 17,500 feet in the No. 1 Seals wildcat, a joint venture of Saga and Marshall R. Young Oil Co.

Townsend noted it was the No. 1 Seals site at which the companies applied to the Mississippi Oil and Gas Board recently for a variation from the Waveland Gas Field rules to establish a minimum permit area.

Saga and Young had asked for the increase from one to two sections in order to insure a larger area for later direction drilling to justify initial high costs of the deep test well.

But in the face of local opposition from private and governmental interests, the companies withdrew their petition at a board hearing last month.

"We've got $3 million in that well now," Townsend noted this week.

He pointed out an application pending before the board from Union Oil Co. for (SAGA DRILLING-PAGE 12)

High incidence of hepatitis reported here

by EDGAR PEREZ

The Mississippi State Health Department's chief medical officer for Hancock County said Wednesday five cases of infectious hepatitis reported in the county since April 17, can not be attributed to any one source.

"I do not want to indict the oyster," said Dr. Louis H. Jobe Jr. from his Hancock County office.

Jobe is the state's ranking public health officer for a six-county district comprised of Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Stone, George and Pearl River Counties.

"Oysters are always mentioned when hepatitis is considered because oysters can filter out the hepatitis-causing virus from polluted water and hold that virus in its body," the doctor pointed out.

"Thus eating raw oysters is just one of a great many sources for humans to contract hepatitis," Jobe explained.

Cooking an oyster will kill the hepatitis virus in an oyster taken from polluted waters and make it safe to eat, the official continued.

"Oysters supplied to restaurants can reasonably be considered safe since they come from monitored sources," Dr. Jobe noted.

"It's when you get a sack from some guy coming down the road that may have been taken from polluted waters and you eat them raw...that's when you could be in trouble," he commented.

McCullough eyes slice of 16th Section pie; Randolph rules out sweets for Bay schools

A Buccaneer sugar plum vision

by EDGAR PEREZ

Hancock County Superintendent of Schools Terry Randolph said this week legal agreements made in 1972 involving Waveland annexation of 16th Section lands now occupied by Buccaneer State Park assure continued payment of lease fees to county schools.

Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Superintendent J. D. McCullough had met with Randolph earlier and raised the question of whether city schools might be entitled to revenues from the acreage since it was annexed by the City of Waveland.

"I would have been delirious in my duties," the city superintendent said, "if, after the matter was brought to my attention by friends, I had not presented the question to Mr. Randolph.

McCullough said he had met privately with Randolph, "and the matter is now in the hands of our attorney."

In connection with his duties as superintendent of county schools, Randolph serves as administrator of 16th Section lands, the revenues from which are dedicated to county schools.

Other than the 328 acres in Buccaneer State Park leased for 99 years by the State Park Commission, there are no 16th Section lands within the boundaries of the Bay Municipal Separate School District.

"Let's face it, I need every dollar I can get," McCullough added.

"It's always been my understanding that when a school district is formed, it takes with it the wealth as well as the bonded indebtedness within its district," the city superintendent added.

Randolph pointed out that reasons for Waveland annexation of the Buccaneer Park area were two-fold:

First, to allow the Park Commission to take a 99-year lease on the park grounds. The county board of supervisors and county school board are limited in granting leases only up to 25 years; whereas municipalities may grant 99-year leases, Randolph explained.

Secondly, annexation was necessary for the City of Waveland to provide sewerage, water and garbage pickup at the park.

"The title to this 16th Section land remains with Hancock County, under the control of the Board of Supervisors; you can't transfer title to 16th Section land," Randolph pointed out.

"In notarized agreements among the State Park Commission, County Board of Supervisors, County Superintendent of Education and the City of Waveland, Waveland agreed to provide the services to the park while the Hancock County School System is to receive and retain all revenues generated by the leasing of the lands," Randolph pointed out.

Terms of the lease call for automatic cancellation if the area ceases to be used as a park and administered by the State Park Commission, Randolph added.

Half of the section in question (Section 16-Township Nine-Range 14) lies under the waters of the Mississippi Sound, Randolph noted. He said the county holds title to "in new lands" elsewhere in Hancock County to compensate the schools for the underwater portions of the section.

Terms of the 16th Section lease call for an annual payment of $2,400 or $200 per month by the Park Commission.

The lease is expected to bring the county schools some $237,600 during its 99-year life.

The Bay Yacht Club weathered the high winds and bullet like rain this past week. Only two of the Flying Scots were blown from their trailers resulting in one bent mast and a snapped-in-half boom. The flag pole which was already listing considerably finally gave way to last Wednesday's hurricane force bursts of wind, and will have to be hoisted, once again, into its footing.

Work began this week on the front deck which will extend all the way across the front of the club making an excellent viewing stand for the numerous races and regattas scheduled for this summer. The front pier which is presently condemned due to weakened pilings will be repaired before the month is out; then sailing may resume as normal.

Board of directors meets 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 12.

by Grady Thigpen, county historian

All travel led through Gainesville

By S. GRADY THIGPEN
History is the framework of culture — the record of all human knowledge — the starting place for all serious education. The Bible is the greatest history of all.

We study in our schools the history of Mississippi, the history of the United States, and the history of the world, but we greatly neglect our own local history which is not taught in the schools.

When I came to South Mississippi, 66 years ago, I became interested in local history when I began to realize the unusual and most interesting record of this section of the country.

About 18 years ago, when I reached 70 years of age, and became semi-retired, I started out to call on at least one old person per week. I interviewed, all told more than 250 of the eldest people in this area, some of them more than once and many of them with memories going back to before the railroad came through in 1884 and even back to civil war days. I found a rich heritage of information, most of it little known to most people now living. By the way, talking to these old people has been the greatest experience of my whole life.

I came to realize the importance of Pearl River to this section back before the railroad came through and for 30 years or more afterwards. The river was the magnet that drew most of the early settlers. If you look at a county map, you find the irregular lines of the Spanish land grants along the river. In the early days most of the people lived along and just back from Pearl River. The only road in what is now Hancock and Pearl River counties on an old map printed in 1855 was the road from Shieldsboro, now Bay St. Louis, to Pearl River, on to Napoleon, to Gainesville, to Hoblochitto, which is now Picayune, on to Pinetucky, now known as Hattiesburg, and on up the river. No road anywhere else shows on this old map.

There were no roads, except this one, no railroad—the only transportation to get in and out of this area until the railroad came through in 1884 was by the river.

In the old papers printed during the 1840s three passenger lines with boats advertised their passenger service up and down Pearl River to New Orleans and other points. There was an ad in the Daily Picayune in 1848 advertising passenger and freight service to Walkiah Bluff opposite Picayune and other points on up the river.

So important was the river, that for over 60 years, the U.S. Government kept Pearl River open for navigation. What was called the Snag Boat went up and down the river clearing out — obstructions to navigations until 1916. Many of the older people in this area worked on the snag boat, among them two men who lived here in Picayune — Sam Russ and Lavelle Stockstill, who gave me much information. Stockstill was employed on the snag boat for several years, working until 1916 when this service was stopped.

Several boats plied regularly up and down the river in the old days carrying both passengers and freight as well as merchandise to sell and trade to people along the river.

John Dillard who died many years ago told me that when he was a boy, and lived where the hospital in Picayune now is, they would listen for the whistles of the steam boats, which were clearly audible, and when they recognized one they wanted to go to a point on the river to sell what they had for sale and to buy things they needed. The boat merchants would take foods, hides and other things in exchange for their wares. Many of these steamboats carried stocks of merchandise. To attract trade these boats would often carry some kind of entertainer, usually a banjo player and negro buck dancer.

Mrs. Robert Thigpen, told of making a trip up the river to Columbia and back on her father's steam boat, the City Demopolis. She told of the beauty of the river, of the great amount of game along the stream, and of having people meet the boat to trade.

The people here lived in a world entirely different from the one we live in now. The only store besides the steam boats in this general area for many years was the Kimball Store on the old road from Gainesville to Columbia which stood where the home of the R. H. Crosby family now is, in Northwest Picayune. Kimball also ran a hotel in that home, and he had a toll bridge across the river there. For many years that was the only bridge across the Hoblochitto. People from as far up the river as Monticello and Columbia travelled this old road to go to New Orleans and other places.

Gainesville was for many years the most important, in fact the only important trading place in this whole area. Everyone living here went to Gainesville. They got their mail at Gainesville in the early days.

E. B. Penton born in 1869 told of going to Gainesville often when he was a young man from his home just west of Carriere. One time it rained so much that the Hoblochitto go up and he had to stay in what is now Picayune for over three weeks waiting for the water to go down enough to ford the creek as there were no bridges. Gainesville one time had 12 to 15 stores, two hotels, a telegraph office, newspaper, a dry dock, a brick yard, and saw mill.

In what is now Picayune, before the railroad came through, there were only two or three houses. The post office, then named Hoblochitto, was at the Kimball store in northwest Picayune. The whole of what is now Picayune except for two or three small fields was covered in virgin pine timber. After the railroad came through the Hoblochitto post office was abolished. For about seven years there was no post office here. People went to Nicholson to get their mail. The first name for what is now Picayune was Bailey

Switch. The first name for Nicholson was Crescent City. Right here, I would like to point out that if I had not gotten these old time stories when I did, I am sure many of them — in fact most of them — would have been forever lost. Recently, I went through the books I've published to see how many of the old people who had given me stories were still living almost all of them are dead.

The coming of the railroad completely changed most everything in this section.

Record of earnings should be checked

It is a good idea for people in this area to check their social security record every 3 years or so to make sure that all their earnings are being correctly reported, a social security representative said today.

And, to make it easier, people can get a free postcard form for this purpose at the nearest office. All a person has to do is fill out the card, stamp it, and send it to the address on the card. In return, he or she will receive a statement of the earnings reported to the person's social security record.

The statement will show actual yearly earnings for the past few years, along with a summary of the earnings reported to the record since the person began working in jobs covered by social security.

Also, the representative continued, if the person is 55 or older, he or she will receive an estimate of the retirement benefits payable at 65 based on current earnings and benefit rates.

There is a reason why a person should check his or her record about every 3 years. That is because corrections cannot generally be made in reported earnings more than 3 years, 3 months, and 15 days after the year in which the earnings were reported.

A person who thinks there is an error in reported earnings should get in touch with any social security office. He or she should bring whatever evidence they have that shows the correct earnings. This might include Forms W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement), pay slips, tax returns, statements from employers, and similar evidence.

The address and telephone number of the nearest office can be found in the telephone directory under "Social Security Administration."

Economist explains law concerning '78 payments

A new tax law signed by President Carter on April 7 permits some farm program payments and disaster payments received in 1978 to be reported as 1977 income.

The crops primarily included for Mississippi will be wheat, as most of the disaster payments had already been received for cotton before Dec. 31, 1977, reports Dr. Johnnie Sartor, agricultural economist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Deficiency payments for sorghum producers are not included under this new law, continues Dr. Sartor. Data were not available for determining the payments at the time of this bill.

For these payments to qualify as 1977 income, farmers must have filed a claim for payments with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in 1977. A farmer may elect to report payments as 1977 income to offset low income last year or to avoid the possibility of having to report two payments under the same program during one year.

Farmers who have received deficiency payments of disaster payments since Jan. 1 and desire to take advantage of this tax law change must file Form 1040X. Taxpayers have three years after the original filing date in which to file amended returns. Therefore, persons may desire to delay a decision until 1978 crop production and income have been determined.

Several tornadoes throughout the state have caused considerable damage. A person who sustained a loss from a disaster in an area which is later determined by the president to warrant

Water in Kiln

The Kiln Water and Fire Protection District in Kiln and surrounding areas may just go down the drain.

Farmers Home Administration has allocated $300,000 as a grant, and a loan of $350,000 for the construction of a water system in the area.

With less than 100 families signed up after working for several months the district commissioners set a cut-off date of June 30. The residents of the area affected had better review some very important items.

We are now fortunate to live in an area where the water table is very high. People in the know say this table is steadily dropping. In some future years, and no one knows for sure how many, there will be problems reaching safe drinking water.

A recent Community Services Agency report says an estimated 24.5 million Americans living in areas with populations under 10,000 drink potentially hazardous water from wells or water systems.

The report says they also "lack a safe, adequate supply of drinking water."

"There is not a state in the union that does not have a water problem," agency spokesman Edwin Cobb said.

Drinking water in affected rural areas may be contaminated by bacteria and metallic substances, or both.

The saying water, water everywhere, but no water to drink could possibly happen in Kiln.

If there are not enough water users signed up to satisfy Farmers Home Administration it would sure be a shame to see the $300,000 go down the drain, and not to mention the many untold hours of work by the commissioners and volunteers of the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District.

Guest Editorial

Wheel dozing can be fatal

Dozing at the wheel was the major cause of motorists running off the road and hitting vehicles parked on the shoulder in more than 2,000 accidents studied by the Department of Transportation and reported by M. F. Conland of Washington, D. C.

The study found that most drivers did not wake up until they collided with parked vehicles.

"In the majority of the accidents, there were no visible tire markings on the paved shoulder or travel lane until impact with the parked vehicle," the study said. "This indicates brake application was not made by the driver prior to collision."

The study raises the question of whether the texture of highway shoulders compared with that of the travel lanes is sufficiently rough to alert drivers that they are going off the road.

In the accidents studied over eight years, the drivers were found to have traveled long distances on the shoulders prior to collision.

"This indicates the ineffectiveness of the differences, if any, in the texture of the highway shoulders compared to that on the lanes intended for travel," the study reported.

One of the study's recommendations is to explore the need for greater contrast between the travel lanes and the shoulders "to the point of producing a 'rumble effect' to alert dozing drivers that they are leaving the traveled portion of the highway, and, possible induce a safe recovery."

Another point raised by the study concerns the dangers of stopping on highway shoulders except in emergencies.

"If these shoulders (were) used by motorists only for the purpose for which they are intended, there is reason to believe that the number of accidents occurring at these locations would decrease," according to the study.

Noting that driver fatigue was found to be the primary cause of the collisions in the accidents reviewed, the study said the Department of Transportation was examining possible changes in the number of hours commercial drivers may be on the road.

The fact that 53 percent of the accidents in this study were attributable to dozing further supports our efforts for re-evaluation on the federal hours of service regulations relating to commercial drivers," the study said.

Kiln murder...

crime was committed and then confirm a link between the defendant and the crime.

Should such presentation be, in the opinion of the justice judge, sufficient to indicate the probability of prosecution claims, then the defendant is bound over to the grand jury. If the evidence is insufficient, then the defendant is not bound over.

The grand jury, in turn, hears the evidence, calls witnesses, and deliberates to see if in its opinion sufficient evidence exists to return a true bill against the defendant containing an indictment on the charges.

Should they so decide in favor of the prosecution, it is to this indictment the defendant, when arraigned before the circuit court judge, must plead guilty, or not guilty.

In an appearance before Judge Dobson on April 28, two days after his first being charged, Depreo was questioned concerning his being able to provide himself with legal representation or whether he desired the services of a court-appointed attorney.

Claiming a lack of legal defense funds, Dobson bound Depreo over this time to circuit court in Gulfport where, in turn, his case was assigned.

Subsequent action by Depreo's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eldo Depreo, excused the court appointed attorney in favor of Atchison, a known trial lawyer.

Atchison opened his defense by quizzing Necaise on the exact nature of charges against the defendant both now and at the time the law contingent from Hancock County, Sheriff Ladner, Peterson, and Price, were in Norfolk. Further he asked if any charges were outstanding against the defendant, later referring specifically to a charge of arson related to a fire at St. Stanislaus College, or the arson charge in the alleged murder case.

Necaise employed exact language in his response seemingly circling the St. Stanislaus issue but claiming the arson involved in the murder incident resulted in the charge of capital murder. He indicated there were "no other charges at this time against the defendant."

Ladner said they were in possession of three John Doe warrants, one each for murder, arson, and aggravated assault, as well as a separate warrant made out in the name of Charles Edward Depreo charging him with the St. Stanislaus arson of October 22, 1976.

In his testimony of the affair, Peterson said he had been called about 3 a.m. by the sheriff's department dispatcher at his home where he was sleeping to go to Hancock General Hospital to investigate the shooting of a little girl.

He said he talked to the girl which turned out to be Joy Lynn Ladner, 6, daughter of Mrs. Janice Ladner and her estranged husband, Earl E. (Buck) Ladner. Following a very brief conversation, due to the girl's being transferred to Gulfport Memorial Hospital, he went to the home of her mother on Joe Moran Road, Kiln, arriving about 3:45 a.m., only to find it engulfed in flames with firemen and other deputies on the scene.

He said the coroner was summoned to the scene after a body was discovered in the ashes. This subsequently turned out to be that of Mrs. Ladner.

Peterson said there was no sign of life in the body.

Questioned on the girl, the chief deputy said she had a bullet hole in the right shoulder, a wound that had an entrance and exit hole.

According to early reports, Joy Lynn Ladner ran from the house to the home of a neighbor to report the shooting of her mother, arriving there "covered in blood and almost incoherent." It was her alarm that was first telephoned to the sheriff at a time previously given as approximately 2:10 a.m., April 8.

The Peterson testimony then centered on the actions followed by himself and his two fellow law officers, while at Norfolk, in relation to the obtaining of voluntary waiver from Depreo and the sequence of events resulting in the issuance of confession concerning the Ladner murder.

In general the Peterson testimony was that the three went to Norfolk as the result of their investigations on the case, arriving there on April 22.

He said they were met by members of the Master-at-Arms office and later officers of the Naval Investigation Service (NIS).

Peterson allowed the defendant was brought to them by the service personnel to where they talked to him in the NIS building.

The chief deputy said initial conversation was of a general nature, mostly concerning local things, and then about the charge on the initial warrant, that of arson at St. Stanislaus.

He told the court that Depreo had asked to talk to 'Naval authorities' following his request he sign waiver to return to Hancock County, a request he was immediately granted, the local men leaving the interrogation room.

It was following this session with the Naval authorities, Peterson said, Depreo announced his agreement to signing the waiver of extradition proceedings, clearing the way for his return to Mississippi.

Peterson testified that after he went back into the room, advised the defendant of his rights, and began talking to him, it was at that point the defendant said, "I want to tell you something else, I did it."

JUSTICE JUDGE JOE DOBSON, Beat 4, here arriving at Hancock County Courthouse, bound Charles Edward (Chuck) Depreo, 18, Kiln, over to July Grand Jury, following his preliminary hearing on charges of capital murder and aggravated assault on Tuesday.

He said the defendant had not told them anything like this before, adding that Depreo was referring to the killing of Mrs. Ladner.

In later testimony Peterson expanded his statement saying Depreo told him, "I did it, I killed her."

The chief deputy said at that point he called Sheriff Ladner and Investigator Price into the room with him for the purpose of obtaining the voluntary statement from Depreo.

On questioning by Atchison, Peterson again said he did not know what transpired in the room when Depreo was alone with the military MIS personnel, nor had the defendant ever admitted to the SSC arson charge.

Peterson said he asked the defendant if he was willing to sign a statement to that effect and Depreo said he would.

The statement was introduced into the record as People's Exhibit C, the two previous exhibits (A and B) being the signed waivers.

Defense Attorney Atchison quizzed Peterson on whether or not the defendant had been shown pictures of a gun, or guns, or a composite (of the supposed suspect drawn by a police artist), before he made the alleged statement, and whether or not all the involved wording was that of the defendant.

The deputy was also quizzed on the defendant's reaction to a threat of search warrants to be issued for both his apartment in Norfolk, one he shared with two of his shipmates, and for his parent's house in Kiln.

The attorney asked whether or not the concern was felt for possible discovery of 'unrelated items,' such as other guns in the Kiln residence, and as a result the defendant had voluntarily accompanied officers to his apartment and provided them with certain items, now construed to be evidence.

Peterson agreed with the question and said the defendant had produced the requested items, articles of clothing and the like, without the necessity of their obtaining a search warrant.

Atchison questioned Peterson at length on the various times entered onto the waiver and statement forms, and on the wording of an extradition form typed by the Navy, due to their not having a printed version for completion.

Asked if any other statement had been made, the chief deputy said the defendant had made verbal statements elaborating his written statement, but that no further statement in writing had been given.

Asked if at one time the investigating team had been looking for a "Chuck" with blond hair, Peterson said that when he asked the child who did it she had said "Chuck did it." Asked Chuck who, Peterson said she responded that she did not know his last name but he is a boy, "...not an old man like you."

Peterson allowed that additional information obtained from the child by doctors and members of the family who had visited the girl, had been forwarded to the department.

The conversations held between medical authorities and Joy Lynn Ladner came again into evidence during the testimony of Joe Price, MHP Special Investigator, who revealed he had heard tapes recorded during such questioning.

He said that some other statements of the girl included such things as her saying she saw the person involved before she went to bed, the giving of a description of certain articles of clothing worn by the man, and the provision of certain identifying features, plus personal family details.

Atchison asked the court to provide him with certain evidence held by the DA, following disclosure by Price that

Necaise was in possession of the tapes. Necaise responded that such act lay outside the authority of the justice court, and would have to be argued before circuit court on the basis of a motion already filed by Atchison for disclosure of this evidence.

Price said other evidence had been discovered at the scene, and in the investigation, that 'justified' their believing a link between the defendant and the crime, and in general verified testimony given by Peterson concerning the Norfolk trip.

The final witness, called in the preliminary hearing, was Sheriff's Deputy Leo Woods, stated to be the first law officer at the scene.

Woods testified he had been on patrol on the Waveland Cutoff when the call came over his radio about 2:15 a.m. on April 8, saying a little girl had been injured on the Joe Moran Road.

He said he shot by the trailer from whence came the original report when he saw the flames coming from the Ladner home.

Parking on the roadside he ran up to the house and put his boot to the front door, kicking it open. He rushed inside "...and 'hollered' to see if anyone was in there alive..." and then had to come back out due to dense smoke and heat.

He verified that fact that prior to his emergency break in, he had seen three bullet holes in the front door, spread like a close triangle.

In response to questioning by Atchison he said he did not know whether they had been fired from outside to inside, or inside to outside, nor had he conducted any extensive investigation.

Again answering questions he said he did not know whether the door had been locked or unlocked, ajar or closed, only that the house was burning down and he didn't stop on the way in his effort to try and save anybody inside.

Asked if he saw the defendant at the scene, or on the road passing in front of the house, Woods said simply, "No."

Woods said that following his verifying that the car in the driveway out front was registered to Mrs. Janice Ladner, he went to the Curtis Henley trailer, where he had been headed to in the first place.

"When I got there they were putting the girl into Mobile Medic. She only said that 'Chuck was there,'" Woods allowed.

Told by Atchison that he had said he had reported the suspect as being blond headed, Woods denied the accusation saying it was the attorney who had said another suspect was blond.

Asked if he had additional evidence concerning the case pertinent to the hearing, Necaise said, "The state does not have anything that would benefit this hearing."

Senseless killing

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis, Miss.

Dear Sir:

This is merely to caution those who are so quick to use a gun to eliminate whatever, they think, is a bother to their way of life; for instance: the killing of defenseless pets for trespassing on their property. I realize this can be a nuisance and try ones patience, but I would suggest first, if owners are known to contact them and explain the situation; then if nothing is done, call the police and get their advice, or if animal Warden is available to pick up offending animal, incarcerate it for the legal limit, and if animal is gentle and healthy, put it up for adoption.

People who are quick on the trigger, don't realize they are helping to put over the controversial gun control law, and though I hate guns and killing, I do believe they are essential towards our protection, in these days of crime and senseless murder, but I fear our constitutional right to own a gun, will be jeopardized to a great extent, if gun control is forced upon us. Killing a rabid animal in a dire emergency is necessary, but even then, extreme precaution is needed in case of ricocheting bullets penetrating into innocent people.

There are always, more sane and effective methods, for any trespass, be it animal or human, than a resort to violence.

Thanking you for publication.

The People's Business

AN EXAMINATION OF ECONOMIC PROGRESS

A review of recent reports indicates all is not well in the labor market. Here is part of the evidence:

The increased minimum wage requirement is having an adverse effect on teenage employment, according to the United States Chamber of Commerce... The Chamber reports teenage employment in the United States has declined by some 200,000 jobs since December 1977.

The jobless rate among black teenagers, the Chamber reports, increased from 38 percent to 39 percent during that time. The jobless rate for black females also increased in that period.

To keep the picture in proper perspective, the total number of jobs increased, but the unemployment rate moved upward from 6.1 percent of the total labor force to 6.2 percent.

Meanwhile, in Mississippi, the unemployment rate was reported at 6.8 percent of the state's total labor force for February, somewhat higher than the national average.

So it is obvious that work needs to be done. Unemployment remains at a higher level than can be accepted and attention needs to be given to specific groups within our society.

One organization in our state is concerned about unemployment and about the economy of the state in general.

That is the Mississippi Economic Council, the state's largest association of business and professional leadership.

MEC, in fact, begins a study soon on the economy of the state. In this study, the Council will be attempting to identify specific steps the state can take to improve its economic standing among the states.

The question with which MEC will be dealing: How can we move Mississippi off the bottom of the economic ladder?

Hepatitis...

The doctor said two recently reported Hancock county hepatitis cases involved persons who had eaten oysters along with a group of people, and were the only two to be affected.

"Those kind of facts make us believe oysters were not the culprit," Jobe pointed out.

The health official said the levels of raw sewage in ditches throughout the Mississippi Gulf Coast is unusually high.

He attributed the situation to what he considers a rapidly increasing population in the area.

He affirmed that a great deal of the untreated, uncollected sewage in the area will eventually find its way into the natural waterways.

"Hepatitis always comes from something that is contaminated," the doctor observed.

He recounted a recent case in Gulfport in which a young boy retrieved a ball from under a house where the septic tank was leaking raw sewage.

"After he picked up the contaminated ball, he got his fingers in or near his mouth, and that's how he got hepatitis," the doctor explained.

Officials in Louisiana recommended no one eat lettuce or leafy ground vegetables from local gardens after last week's flood since the produce had all been contaminated by sewage," Dr. Jobe noted.

Gulf Coast residents should be especially careful about personal hygiene when preparing and eating food, the doctor warned.

"Always be careful to wash your hands before eating or before fixing meals," the health official urged.

He noted the simple act of taking off one's shoes could contaminate the hands if one has walked in an area exposed to sewage.

"I realize nothing can be done immediately about the sewerage situation, so I can only urge extra precaution in personal hygiene," Jobe emphasized.

He reported while at least one or two cases of hepatitis are under treatment in his district at all times, "we are experiencing a little more than we usually have right now."

"But I certainly wouldn't classify the incidence rate as an epidemic," the doctor added.

Increased outdoor recreational activity, gardening and outdoor occupational endeavors at this time of year also contribute to the increased danger of contracting hepatitis, he warned.

Jobe noted his department employs two seafood inspectors who sample the entire Gulf Coast area, along with inspectors from the Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission.

"Their work is also reinforced by federal inspectors in the area," Jobe noted.

He noted no oyster beds have been closed recently due to pollution.

"And if we keep expanding our sewage collection systems on the Coast, we'll probably be opening more and more oyster beds which have been closed for years," the health official stated.

Dennis Crew, Mississippi Marine Conservation Commission official, said his department has no knowledge at this time of a rate of hepatitis higher than normal on the coast.

"We have not heard a thing about it," Crew said Friday from his Biloxi office.

He said his office has not encountered any new areas of pollution in coastal waters, nor found any contaminated oyster beds.

What does a Circuit Court Judge do?

Kosta Vlahos explains:

"As important as the office of U.S. Senator is, your circuit court judge has a stronger effect on your daily life. He runs, in a very real sense, the people's court. Property disputes, automobile accidents, insurance claims, personal injuries, burglaries, assaults, rapes, murders, frauds; all go through the circuit court.

"How the judge conducts the court directly affects how the police do their job. Affects whether we feel safe in our home, or business. Strongly influences the attitudes of young people.

"His most important duty is to oversee the trial. Make sure that the rules of fairness are scrupulously followed. Control the aggressive or unruly. Soothe ruffled feelings. Interpret the law. Try to help the jury penetrate to the truth.

"However, a judge can be knowledgeable and fair-minded—and still be a poor judge. If he is ill-organized, or lazy, cases will pile up. Witnesses move away. Evidence goes stale. Justice will be delayed or thwarted."

Kosta Vlahos is a worker. He started work at twelve, washing dishes in the family restaurant. He worked all through Biloxi High School, where he was elected president of the student body. He entered Tulane University at 17. He worked in the cafeteria to pay part of his expenses, was elected president of School of Business Administration, and was graduated in June 1963 as a Bachelor of Business Administration. While in law school at Ole Miss, he held down three jobs: dormitory manager, legal researcher, and laundry man. He was awarded his Juris Doctorate in 1966. He enlisted in the National Guard that same year, and was commissioned 2nd Lieutenant in the United States Army on August 26, 1968. He was later commissioned a Lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, serving in a Navy Law Company.

When 29 years old, he was elected by the attorneys of Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties as their representative to the Mississippi State Bar Association. Two years later he was elected President of the Harrison County Bar Association.

While serving as Assistant District Attorney for Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties, he prosecuted and won a $175,000 land fraud case against two Mississippi State Highway Department officials.

Vlahos conducts a very active law practice in the courthouses at Bay St. Louis, Wiggins, Gulfport, and Biloxi. He has handled every kind of criminal case, including murder. He has represented both complainants and defendants in every kind of civil suit.

Kosta's wife, Kally, teaches high school classes in 'World History and Government. She holds Master's degrees in Political Science and Secondary Education. They are expecting their first child in July.

Kosta is president of his church council and a lay reader in his Bible study group. He is active in the Chamber of Commerce, the Jaycees, Rotary, and the American Heart Association.

Kosta Vlahos has broad experience in law. He has the respect of his fellow lawyers and the judges. He proved his independence during his vigorous prosecution of the Highway Land Fraud case. And he knows what it means to work. Isn't he the kind of man we need for Circuit Judge?

Defective gas valve alert out

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) has warned consumers that certain manually operated gas valves, imported since 1976, may leak, creating the possibility of fire or explosion in the home.

Hundreds of thousands of these valves have been distributed nationwide.

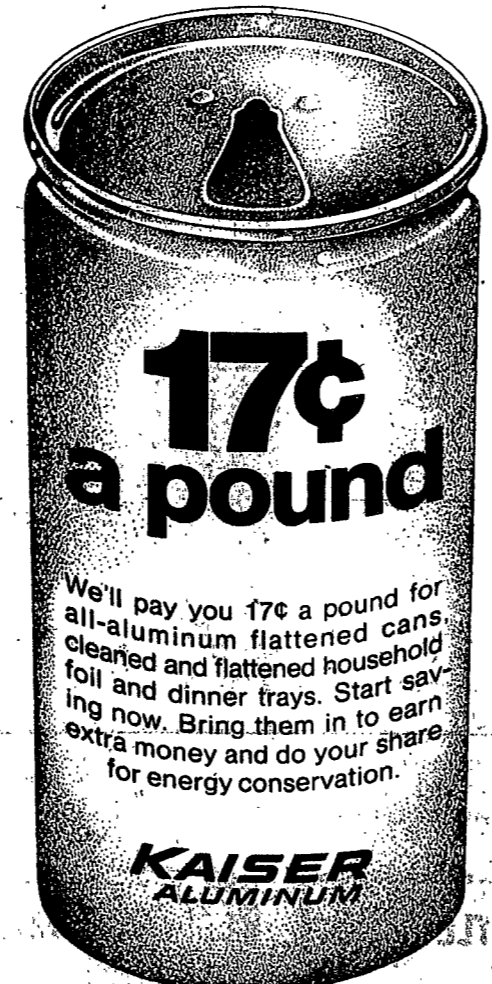

The suspect gas valves, used to shut off the gas supply to gas appliances, have reportedly been involved in two fires and 15 gas leaks in Sacramento County, California. The CPSC staff is currently investigating these reports and attempting to identify all importers of the gas valves.

According to Commission staff, the defective valves, all manufactured in Taiwan, are believed to have been imported and distributed by a number of firms since early 1976. The valves can be identified by the number "34" or "1/2" stamped on the side of the unit and the word "Taiwan" on the unit's washer. However, gas valves manufactured in Taiwan by other companies could bear similar identification.

If you live in a house built or remodeled since early 1976 which uses gas appliances or in a home where new gas appliances have been installed, check your gas lines to see if one of the defective valves has been used. If you are not sure where to look for the valves, contact your builder, gas appliance in-estimates on the cost.

It was at this time council was unanimous in tabling the Petition until their next meeting, Tuesday, May 16.

Council closed its meeting by a 3-2 vote after Louis Fernandez, sanitation officer, was interrupted in the middle of a presentation. Thriffley, Harry Farve and Wilmer Seymour were for ending the meeting. Councilmen Pete Benvenuti and Fred Wagner were against stopping the meeting. After the vote Wagner stated, "I am against adjourning under these circumstances".

Council president James Thriffley told Fernandez he wasn't on the docket for the meeting leading to the 3-2 meeting closure vote.

Council Benvenuti previously made a motion that Henley Place Subdivision be given 45 days to submit a plot to the City complying with all subdivision regulations. Benvenuti said that he feels council should back the recommendations of the Zoning and Planning Commission.

George Klenpeter, Burk and Associates engineer, told council his company was awaiting a reply from the subdividers on two points, one had something to do with the slopes on the streets, and the other about specific location flooding.

The motion by Benvenuti failed by a 3-2 vote.

It was during the discussion on the motion when Louis Fernandez, Sanitation Supervisor submitted a letter to Council Regulations Governing Public Water Systems.

The letter read:
May 9, 1978

Honorable Larry J. Bennett, Mayor
Councilmen
City of Bay St. Louis
P. O. Box 310
Bay St. Louis, Miss. 39520

Re: Our conference at 5 p.m. on May 4, 1978, concerning Mississippi Laws Governing Public Water Systems and Public Sewerage Systems.

Gentlemen:

I am writing this letter to confirm the above conference.

The regulation governing Public Water Systems, (Primary Drinking Water Regulation), was adopted by the Mississippi State Board of Health on December 16, 1976, to become effective June 24, 1977. This regulation has been promulgated under the authority of and pursuant to the Mississippi Safe Drinking Water Act (Section 41-26-1 through Section 41-26-23, Mississippi Code of 1972).

Under Section A. General provisions, 301.5 Preconstruction Requirements (a) Siting Requirements. Before a person may initiate construction of a new public water system or increase the capacity of an existing public water system, he shall submit sufficient information to the director for evaluation of the proposed site, to determine whether the site and design of the proposed construction of modification will enable the system to comply with this regulation. (b) Plans and Specification Approval. Prior to initiating construction of a new public water system or making significant extensions or alterations to an existing public water system which may affect the operation of that system, plans and specifications of the proposed construction shall be approved by the director. Plans and specifications submitted to the director for approval shall be prepared by a professional engineer registered in the State of Mississippi.

I also referred to the Air and Water Pollution Control Act Chapter 258, Mississippi Laws of 1966 and amended by Chapter 440, Laws of 1968; Chapters 456 and 496, Laws of 1971 and Chapter 505, Laws of 1972, and also the State of Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Act addenda General Laws of Mississippi of 1973.

Before meeting with you on May 4, 1978, I conferred with Mr. Joe D. Brown, Director Bureau of Environmental Health, Mississippi State Board of Health. Mr. Brown is also a Commissioner on the Air and Water Pollution Control Commission.

I understand Mr. Brown to state that it is policy to receive and review plans and specifications on significant extensions or alterations to either an existing public water system or an existing public sewerage system prior to initiating construction.

The Hancock County Health Department receives copies of all letters between these two agencies and developers, etc. concerning the agency's approval, etc. of such plans and specifications.

As I stated to you on May 4, 1978 this department has not received written or oral confirmation that plans and specifications on either Westwood Developers, Inc., or Henley Place have been received by either state agency.

To the best of my knowledge, construction of the sewerage and water systems in both proposed subdivisions are well underway.

Plans and specifications of the sewerage and water systems of these two proposed subdivisions should be sent to the appropriate state agency as soon as possible for their review and approval, etc.

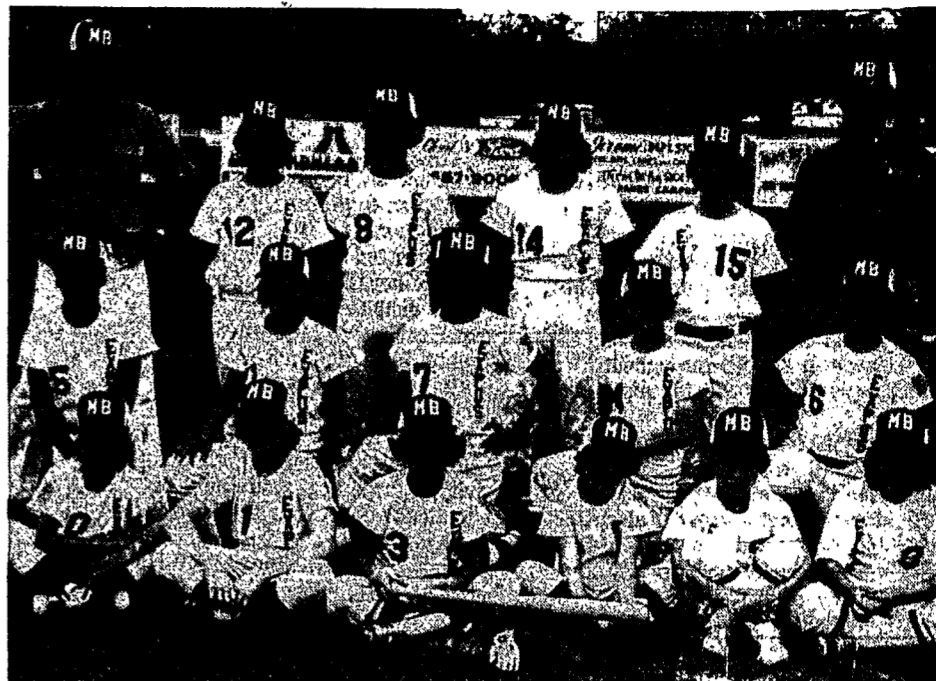

Sincerely,

Louis J. Fernandez
Sanitation Supervisor

CC: Mr. Joe D. Brown
Mr. Cecil B. Rhodes
Mr. Bobby Berry

Fernandez was asked if he submitted this information to the developers, and he replied that he had told them verbally but not in writing.

Fernandez also requested council ask the Zoning and Planning Commission, of which he is a member, to keep on record all tapes of their meetings and not destroy them.

VA news

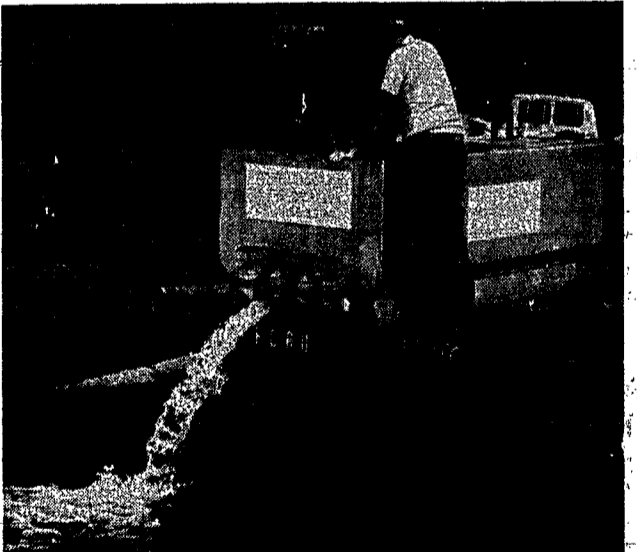

Q - Is there any kind of VA education or training available for veterans who have serious service-connected disabilities and whose termination dates have passed?

A - Congress has eliminated termination dates under the VA vocational rehabilitation program for veterans with serious service-connected disability who need education or training to obtain suitable work.

Under the VA vocational rehabilitation program, the VA pays for tuition and other training costs, and the veteran receives a monthly living allowance during training.

Q - I was disabled in WWII and the VA gave me $1600 toward the purchase of an automobile in 1949. Now that this allowance has been increased to $3300, am I entitled to the difference on another car?

A - No. But the VA may assist in providing or maintaining adaptive equipment on your present or future cars. Adaptive equipment will not be provided a claimant for more than one conveyance at a time and for not more than three conveyances in a two-year period.

May garden guide

May is the month that spring gives way to the warm weather of early summer.

For a colorful display of chrysanthemums this fall, divide old clumps, saving the best ones for replanting or make cuttings of your favorite varieties and root them in a mixture of equal parts sand and peat. Cover the cutting box with plastic, and place in the shade for several days to prevent wilting. Keep moist at all times.

Divide and plant dahlia tubers this month and in early June. Cut apart with a sharp knife, so that each sprout has a tuber attached to it. Select a site that has rich, fertile soil, drains well and gets at least six hours of sunlight each day. Plant tubers about 18 inches apart, five inches deep with the bud pointing upward. Place a stake beside the tuber at planting time. Mulch dahlias to conserve moisture. Feed each plant every three to four weeks with 1/4 cup of complete fertilizer such as 5-10-10.

Finish planting container-grown ornamentals, such as azaleas and gardenias. Water every few days during first month in the ground; then begin a regular fertilization program.

To promote good growth, a light application of nitrogen is needed now on lawns of warm-season grasses such as Bermuda, centipede, St. Augustine and zoysia. Water thoroughly after applying fertilizer. It is not too late to start new lawns of warm-season grasses. Treat chinch bugs and grubs in grasses with an insecticide such as Diazinon or Aspon. Follow directions on container.

Mulch the rose bed if it hasn't been done. Use two to four inches of pine straw or wood chips. Water as needed, soaking the soil each time. A soaker hose is best for water application. Continue the weekly applications of an insecticide-fungicide to control aphids, blackspot, mildew, thrips and other problems. Feed plants monthly with about 1/4 cup of 8-8-8 fertilizer per bush. Prune climbing roses after they have finished blooming.

Clumps of cannas should be divided every three or four years. Carefully lift each clump of roots with a spading fork and shake off soil. Cut healthy clumps of roots into sections, with at least one leaf on each small section. Plant in a sunny spot in well-prepared soil to which organic matter and super-phosphate has been added. Set five or six inches deep and 15 inches apart. Water thoroughly.

Sow seeds of cosmos, marigold, morning glory, portulaca and zinnias directly into the soil where they are to grow.

Pinch back summer annuals to make bushier plants. Also, pinch back perennials such as coleus, geraniums and impatiens.

A mulch of pine straw or compost applied now to flowerbeds and shrubbery will help conserve moisture and reduce weeds.

If you haven't moved houseplants outdoors for the summer, do so now. Treat infested plants with malathion.

Sow seeds of cantaloupes, carrots, corn, lima beans, okra and squash. Also transplant tomatoes, eggplants and peppers.

Buccaneer Crew Notes

BY DIDDY QUINLAN

Due to professional and personal obligations, no recreation program was carried out last weekend. But this weekend will see the beginning of two more continuous programs. Our movie schedule will start Friday at 8 p.m. and our crafts for kids sessions start Saturday at 11 a.m.

The public as well as campers is invited to participate. Both of these activities will be continued on a regular basis throughout the summer.

As I said, our movie schedule starts Friday at 8:00 with "Smokey and His Forest Friends," a short children's film from the U.S. Forest Service. Through the month of June, our schedule looks like this: May 19, Amelia and the Angel; May 26, Way Out West-Laurel and Hardy; June 2, Doughnuts; June 9, Stuart Little; June 16, Song of the Trees; June 23, The Eternal Tramp-Charlie Chaplin; June 30, Journey to the High Arctic. All except the last two are children's films. Remember, that all of these movies are free to the public.

Our kid's crafts project this week will be the "Eye of God (Ojo de Dios)" wall hangings. These are Indian craft articles, made of yarn and wood. They are quite attractive additions to many rooms and can be made for the small price of .25 cents. Our craft class, like any other of our classes charges only for the materials you use. These would make excellent Mother's Day gifts.

Other activities this weekend will include a Mother's Day Contest; a mural painting for kids; a volleyball game, a story hour; and a mother-child shuffleboard tournament.

NAACP to sponsor Freedom Jubilee

The Hancock County Chapter of the NAACP will sponsor a Freedom Fund Jubilee Program, starting at 3 p.m., Sunday, May 28, at St. Rose's Catholic Church, Bay St. Louis.

Mayor Charles Evers of Fayetteville will be the special music for the event will be provided by the Goodwill Missionary Baptist Church-Inspirational Choir of Pass Christian, and by members of the community.

Advance tickets are available from chapter members at $2 or at the door at $2.50.

Funds raised will be used to help support the local, state, and national NAACP movement.

Further information is available from Albert Faircornette, president, 467-7752, or Clementine Williams, secretary, 863-1423.

vote on Dec. 23, 1975, agreed to the formation of the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District.

The original commissioners of the Kiln Volunteer Fire Company still serve, with Cleveland Wyatt, Jr. as president. The commissioners and members of the Kiln Water and Fire Protection District want to have a 100 per cent safe drinking water supply, adequate pressure for household appliances, a water system to provide supply to fire hydrants for the proper use to fight fires.

One of the secondary gains is the possible reduction of fire insurance rates, the commissioners report.

A representative of the Kiln Water and Fire District is on hand at the Kiln Fire Station 7 to 9 p.m., Thursdays, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Saga gas...

an exception to the Waveland Field Rules is a more routine request than the one filed earlier by Saga and Young.

Union is seeking a rules exception for a drilling permit on a land package totaling some 708 acres in Section 32 and the Antonio Chebert Claim 39-Township Seven South-Range 14 West in Hancock County.

Townsend noted land holdings in Hancock County which pre-date federal sectioning "follow highly irregular patterns, making definition of an exact 640 acres per section difficult.

Townsend acknowledged receipt of a "good will" letter from Norton Haas, Hancock County land owner who was among these in opposition to the recent Saga and Young petition before the Oil and Gas Board.

The Houston oil executive said he will attempt to maintain open lines of communication with Haas and others in Hancock County whose opposition to Saga proposals, he said, were based on a "misunderstanding of Saga's position."

Townsend said he feels Mississippi law needs updating to encourage and protect speculative oil and gas development along lines of statutory improvements which have been made in other oil and gas producing states such as Oklahoma and Texas.

In other Hancock County development, Texas Pacific Oil Co., Inc., is drilling below 11,000 feet in a test well, the No. 1 J. Y. Taylor, located on the northwestern flank of the Waveland Gas Field.

The district covers 10,000 acres and runs from Cuevas Junction in the North to Interstate 10 in the South, intersecting Jourdan River Oaks in the West and Rotten Bayou on the East. The area includes Kiln Community, Silver Creek Acres, Jourdan River Shores, Jourdan River Oaks and Cuevas Junction.

private pier.

Padgett's proposed pier would extend some 200 feet into the Bay from Beach Boulevard near Pine Tree Road.

A 12' X 12' covered shed, a 10' covered boat slip, and an 8' deck are proposed for the end of the 5'-wide, 200'-long run, according to Padgett's application.

Contract depth of the well, a Mooringsport try, is 13,500 feet. Legal description of the location is the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of Section 35-Township Seven South-Range 15 West.

Mississippi Gulf Coast waterbottoms are included in a 711,000-acre offshore tract which federal officials estimate could contain undiscovered reserves of up to 250 million barrels of oil and 3.4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

A total of 145 tracts in the Gulf of Mexico off the coasts of Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas have been put up for bids for oil and natural gas development.

At least 30 of the tracts are being offered for the second time, with first round bids having been rejected by the government as too low.

Harold Sieverding, Bureau of Land Management official setting up the lease sale, said 11 percent of the 145 tracts will be offered under a new bidding system.

He predicted the new system would probably cut into the size of the bids offered initially by the companies, but if oil or gas is produced, the payments will increase over the old system.

Under the old system, the companies paid a flat 16 and two-thirds percent royalty on oil and gas they found.

Under the new sliding scale, the cost of the lease will depend on the value of the oil and gas produced on the tract. The more valuable the find, the higher the rate.

Washington report

By Trent Lott

FEDERAL BUDGET: SUBTRACTION IS A NO-NO

You don't have to be a mathematician to figure the federal budget for a new fiscal year. Anyone can do it, because all that's needed is an adding machine without a subtraction button.

The First Concurrent Budget Resolution for fiscal year 1979, which was debated on the House floor last week, proved the point. As expected, congressional committees wanted to raise President Carter's proposed $500.2 billion budget to $501.4 billion, a full $1.2 billion.

The resulting $58.1 billion deficit is a 5 percent decrease from fiscal year 1978, but off-budget items and other considerations could actually up the public debt to $356.3 billion. That pill was hard to swallow, so out of fiscal prudence, I opposed the resolution.

It seems to me that the congressional budget process has grown increasingly unwieldy, despite the fact that the 1974 Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act was supposed to stop all that. Congress is supposed to plan its total budget from available funds FIRST, then make specific spending priorities.

Unfortunately for the country, the Congress has found the old habit hard to break and often takes a dim view of strictly following the spirit of the law. Numerous efforts to decrease the size of the 1979 budget were defeated.

While the budget will not be in its final form until September, elements in the First Concurrent Resolution included the following: income security, $159.3 billion; national defense, $115.7 billion; health, $49.5 billion; education, training, employment and social services, $31.4 billion; veterans' benefits and services, $20.5 billion; transportation, $17.8 billion; and agriculture, $12.2 billion.

Congressional committees cut the President's proposals in defense and health, while all other categories listed above were increased over his recommendations.

The budget resolution does recommend individual and corporate income tax cuts amounting to $10.7 billion, which is less than the President proposed, rolling back mandatory social security payroll tax increases by $7.5 billion and other items. Although the deficit envisioned by Congress is some $2.5 billion less than the President's, it's still too high.

The Budget Act of 1974 was designed to alleviate the crushing blow of over-extended federal budgets by making Congress aware each step of the way of which programs were being funded and to what extent. But Congress has yet to relate the budget process to the national debt ceiling.

The end results, of course, are higher deficits and bigger public debts with emphasis on social and welfare programs.

Finch joins in celebration

Bay St. Louis Little League opens season with a bang

Governor Cliff Finch and Bay St. Louis commissioner Harry Farve threw out the first balls to open the 1978 Bay St. Louis Little League Season Saturday at McDonald Field.

Ceremonies at the field culminated a parade through main street which featured a long roster of local officials and four candidates for Miss Bay St. Louis sharing top-billing with Bay High, North Bay, and St. Stanislaus marching bands.

Members from the six Little League teams marched along with the bands and motorcade from the junior high on Ulman, along Second Street, up Main, and along Dunbar to McDonald Field at Ulman and Dunbar. The Merchants Bank Expos, Gulf National Bank, Hancock Bank Lions, Fahey's A's, Riemann's Stars, and the American Legion Mets are the six teams competing in this year's League.

Finch threw a ball to the catcher of each team, then closed ceremonies with a short speech to the Little Leaguers and their parents.

In the opening game of the season immediately following on the field ceremonies, last years' champion Hancock Bank met one of the top contenders for the title, Gulf National Bank. Hancock moved out to an early 4-1 lead but in the top of the fourth inning Gulf National scored four runs to push ahead. Gulf National held on to the lead for the remainder of the game to win the critical first round contest. David McIver was the winning pitcher while Jeffrey Smith was on the mound for Hancock. Freddie Wilkerson had two hits for Hancock.

The second game featured a slugfest with Edmund Fahey's A's defeating Merchant's Bank, 15-7. Merchants' Bank held a 5-1 lead heading into the bottom of the second, but Fahey's rallied to go ahead, 6-5. Merchant's battled back to the lead slot with two runs in the top of the third, but the A's racked up seven runs in the bottom of the fourth to put the game out of reach.

DONT FEED THE GATORS

Hancock County game warden Pat Roomey warns residents in subdivisions along bayous not to feed the alligators. "If people feed the alligators, the gators won't leave the area," said Toomey. "The alligators may even come up into resident's yards if they are accustomed to getting a hand-out." The best policy, Toomey says, is to leave the creatures alone and hope they will give you the same treatment.

FISHING LICENSE

The L & N railroad track serves as a dividing line between fishing areas under the jurisdiction of the Marine Conservation Service and those patrolled by the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission. No fishing licenses are required in water south of the track including the Bay of St. Louis, which is under the Conservation Service. All areas north of the track, including the mouth of rivers entering the Bay, do require licenses issued by the Game and Fish Commission.

AFS FIREPLACE, a new thermostatically controlled forced air stove that can mean real savings in home heating costs.

DELIVERS 27,000 BTU'S PER HOUR. BURN WOOD, COAL, PAPER OR "BUFFALO CHIPS". This will recirculate the air in a 3,000 sq. ft. home three times in an hour, or, being conservative, provide even heat distribution throughout a 2,400 sq. ft. house by virtue of the blower's circulation capacity. Depending on the type and quantity of fuel burned, 10,000 to 100,000 BTU's are readily achieved. Result: drastic reduction of utility bills.

General Jackson visits Hancock County

by S. Grady Thigpen, county historian

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

The great part Andrew Jackson played in the early history of this area is not generally known or appreciated. The army under his command that fought the battle of New Orleans was said to be the greatest army in the history of this country to march over land through virgin forests so quickly and for such a long distance. That march was made through what are now Pearl River and Hancock counties. There are evidences, even now 164 years later, showing the route of this remarkable accomplishment.

When army intelligence became aware of the purpose of the British to capture New Orleans, President Madison issued "hurry-up" orders to General Jackson in the fall of 1814 to go to the defense of this important city. Jackson immediately began the classic movement of his army from Georgia and North Florida to save New Orleans.

The Gainesville Advocate, a paper published at Gainesville, where the great government installations now stand, in its issue of Saturday, Jan. 24, 1846, called attention to a part of Gov. Brown's message to the legislature on Jan. 6, 1846 saying, "We cannot omit Gov. Brown's language while speaking of General Andrew Jackson. Had the governor never said or done ought else that was commendable, this tribute of respect and gratitude to the memory of the old Hero was sufficient to cause the people's congratulations on his reelection."

The governor further said, "I have the honor to transmit resolutions of the Texas congress passed June 21, 1845, tendering to General Andrew Jackson the tribute of a nation's gratitude. It was not given to the venerable patriot to receive this tribute. He died at the Hermitage, (in Nashville, Tennessee), June 8, 1845, full of years and full of honors. The resolutions are not more honorable to Texas than they would have been gratifying to the eminent man for whom they were intended had it pleased heaven to lengthen out his days, until he had received them. The perusal of these resolutions awaken in our minds the liveliest recollections of a man who has left the of the interests and institutions of his country. He was ever the fast and unchanging friend of Mississippi. Firm and inflexible in his purpose - wise in council and terrible in war, he possessed a mind to comprehend, and a will to serve our wants.

His was a heart without guile, and in his bosom the fires of patriotism never went out. Whether in the field—at the red man's council fire—in the senate or chair of state—or in later years, when stricken by time, we see him bowing before the altar of the great I AM—his cares, his affections, and his energies were given, always given, to his country. He has descended to the tomb, but it is left with us to manifest our gratitude which we feel for the past political and military services of this great man."

Andrew Jackson had a tremendous impact on this area. His army opened up important roads to the east over which many of the early settlers came to South Mississippi. The artillery and heavy equipment section of Jackson's army camped for several days about a mile east of present day Caesar in what is now Hancock County. The old ovens over which food was cooked are still visible there. The roads to and from the Caesar section were widened out from Indian trails to roads for wagons. Dan Cooper, an old man 50 years ago, told of hearing often in his young days his father and grandfather tell of how the old road was cleared and of how for three whole days, there was a constant stream of loaded wagons with artillery, ammunition and supplies on the way to Pearl River to be loaded on ships to New Orleans.

It seems that every boat of every kind was commandeered to haul these supplies to New Orleans in time to meet the British army on its way across the Gulf and up the Mississippi River.

Andrew Jackson himself was with the northern contingent of this army. He spent a night at a home in what is now Pearl River County a short distance southwest of Lumberton. From there he went and crossed Pearl River at the Ford's old place where he, with his staff spent several days. An often told story of his stay at the Ford home is that the first day there, Jackson's men used much bad language. This was something Mrs. Ford would not stand for. She went to see the General and told him in no uncertain terms, "You are welcome here but I will not have bad language used in my home, so stop it or get out."

It is said that the General smiled and assured Mrs. Ford that such conduct would stop. And it was stopped. It is further said that for the balance of their stay the General and his staff attended the nightly devotions of the Ford family.

The old military road from Caesar on to Gainesville has been slightly changed at a number of places, but is still substantially as it was laid out by US army engineers in the fall of 1814.

In the fall of 1814, a contingent of Jackson's army, said to be a regiment, camped in what is now northwest Picayune for several days, occupying the land where the Crosby families now live.

Other interesting stories are told of the march of Andrew Jackson's army through this section. Over 50 years ago, I knew personally a son of one of Jackson's soldiers, then over 90 years old. He liked to tell of how his mother met his father. She, with many others visited the army camp. She saw there a young soldier, who told her "I'll be back for you." Since his French mother, then could speak only French and his father only English, I asked the old man how they did their courting since they could not talk to one another. He said, "You don't have to be able to talk to fall in love and get married." (This story has been told before but I think it is a good one, so have repeated it.)

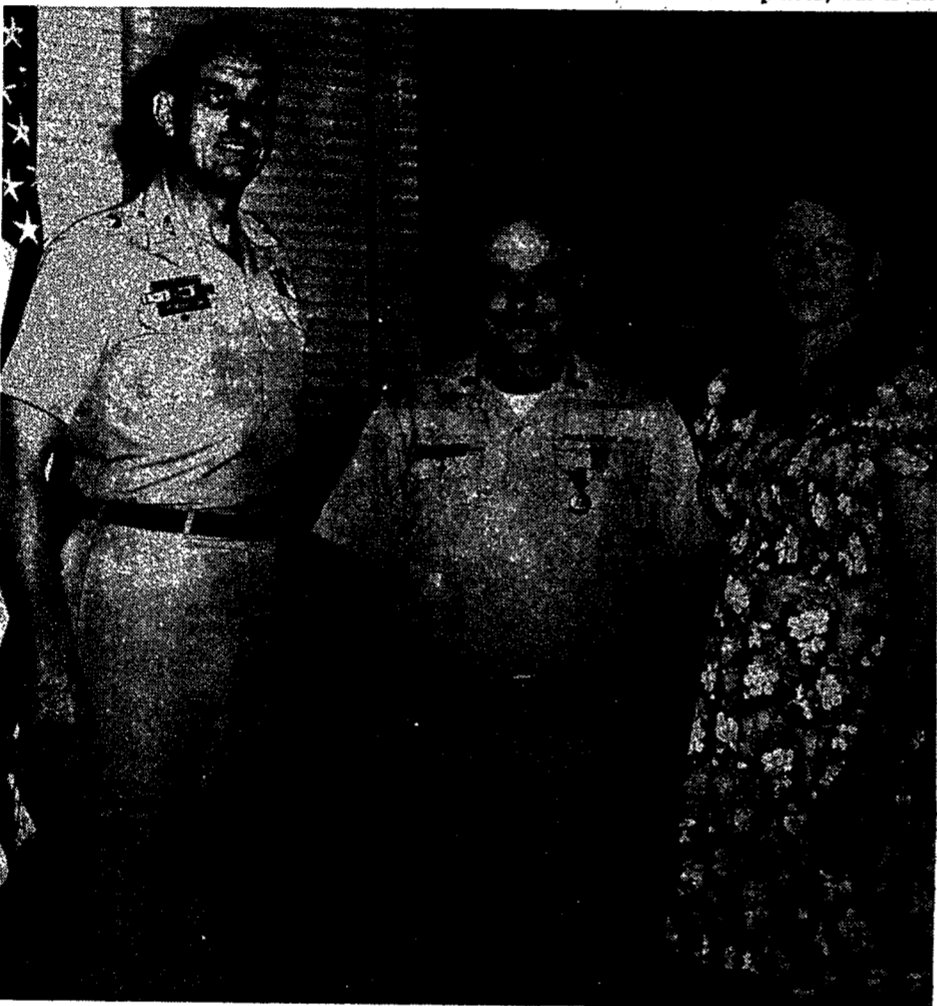

Crosby family in 1819, which is today a well kept fine antebellum home.

The history of what are now Pearl River and Hancock counties is most important and most interesting, and is very different from the history of any other area of the whole nation.

This area where we live was occupied by Federal troops in the civil war. A minor battle was fought a few northwest of Picayune in which five men were killed and buried at the Big Spring - which it was then called. Another was caught and hung to a hickory tree. Prentice Jordan, now dead, said the nuts from this tree were always bitter and not good to eat.

A federal gunboat was sunk in Pearl River just north of Logtown. When federal troops came in, many of the old settlers took refuge in Honey Island.

Five federal soldiers were killed near where Cedar Grove church now is and are buried there.

USM hikes summer fall semester fees

Several fee adjustments for the summer and fall semesters have been announced by the offices of Housing and Business-Finance at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Dr. Tom Estes, Vice

President for Business and Finance made the announcement and attributed the adjustments to USM's change from the quarter system to the longer semester calendar and to the general rate of inflation.

Room rates for the upcoming summer session will be $186 for air-conditioned residence halls and $210 for luxury residence halls. Fall semester room rates will be $249 for three dormitories: Hattiesburg, Hickman and Mississippi Halls; $279 for air-conditioned dorms; $300 for Vann Hall; and $315 for two luxury resident halls, Hillcrest and Elam Arms.

The USM Commons will offer two meal plans to students in the fall. A five day plan will cost $265 per semester. A seven day plan will cost $290. Meal plans for summer semester 1979 will cost $175 for the five day plan and $190 for the seven day meal plan.

It will give all of you an insight on the operation of a center.

At this center, one of the most active in the State, there are various types of hobbies

There is also a Bible Class and our Singing Seniors who participate in all programs. All seniors who would like to sell or display any of their wares, please come early (8 a.m.) in order to set up a table for you. One stipulation and that is if you sell or display any of your wares you or a friend must stay with the articles until closing time, or until you close shop.

Extra added attraction will be musical entertainment furnished by Louis Burghard on the piano, Walter Chamberlain on the Banjo, Eddie Englehorn on saxophone and Fred Horn on the drums. We promise you a day that will make you glad you attended this event.

University for Seniors set for May 22-24, USM

By NORINE BARNES
 "Be Active - Live Longer" is the theme for the third annual University Days for Senior Citizens to be held May 22-24 at Mississippi State University (MSU), announces Norine Barnes, Extension Home Economist.

We want to encourage Hancock County's retirees and senior Citizens to join others from throughout the State in this opportunity to share ideas and attend programs designed especially for them.

The three-day program will include workshops, campus tours, programs, craft exhibits, a banquet and entertainment. All activities will be held in the MSU Union Building, directly across from Hull Hall where participants may be housed. Dr. Ivan Miles of Starkville is serving as planning committee chairman.

Costs for this special get-together have been kept minimal. Participants will pay a $1.25 registration fee and $2 per night for dormitory lodging. The banquet itself is free; other meals will be available at the MSU cafeteria. We hope the low costs and attractive program planned for the three days will bring a large crowd to MSU for this special event.

Special funds for the banquet are being provided by the Mississippi Council on Aging. The Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service will coordinate the event and is the sponsoring organization.

Church groups, organizations or retired persons and individuals interested in attending the third annual University Days for Senior Citizens should call the County Extension Office for more details.

Let's not bluff our future.

They say a good bluffer wins a lot of poker games by making people believe he's holding good cards. Some people think America can bluff like that. But, I believe we really NEED the best weapons and defenses.

If you don't believe in bluffing, vote for me. I'd like to show you how much difference one man can make in being sure we never have to bluff our future.
